Camp Arrowhead Earns ACA Accreditation

by Rufus Miller,
bishop's staff

After a multi-year process Camp Arrowhead has received notice that we are now fully accredited by the American Camping Association (ACA). The accreditation process educates camp owners and directors in the administration of key aspects of camp operation, program quality, and the health and safety of campers and staff. It establishes guidelines for needed policies, procedures, and practices and assists the public in selecting camps that meet industry-accepted and government-recognized standards. ACA's Find-A-Camp Database provides the public with many ways to find the ideal ACA-accredited camp.

The process involved examining Camp Arrowhead's operations to ensure we met the standards set by the ACA. It culminated this past summer when we were visited by ACA personnel for two days in the final steps toward earning our accreditation. Our accreditation gives assurance to both our management and the public that we are using the industry's "best practices."

The abbreviated "Taste of Camp" experience is a popular way to let Arrowhead's youngest campers "test drive" camp life.

The week that the ACA visited, Bishop Wright also came to camp and later shared this reflection on his time there: "I spent an evening at Camp Arrowhead earlier this week. I met with Walt LaFontaine, our camp director, and his staff, had supper with the campers, and then had a chance to see the almost completed, new Staff Lounge.

"I was reminded again how blessed we are to have Camp Arrowhead. Through personal generosity and hard work, our diocese was able to acquire such a beautiful piece of property in a unique setting beside Rehoboth Bay. I doubt very seriously we could afford to purchase it today.

"But, Camp Arrowhead is much more than property. It is really about people. Most importantly it is about the program staff and counselors who make it the wonderful place that it is – year after year. When I visit camp, I always make a special point of thanking them.

"This week, representatives of the American Camping Association are visiting Camp Arrowhead. Their visit will be one of the final steps in a multi-year process toward full accreditation for our camp. Thanks go to Teri Valente and many others who have been working very hard to move us toward this goal. And, thanks to the families, congregations, and clergy who support Camp Arrowhead through the years."

Preparations are underway for the 2012 summer camp season, and registration is now open at www.CampArrowhead.net. Our 2012 brochure is also on the website. Printed copies are available by request from our registrar, Debbie Simms, at DebbieSimms@CampArrowhead.net, 645-5348, or P.O. Box 625, Lewes, DE 19958.

Heartwarming Validation for the Cathedral Choir School as Relocation Offers Pour In

by Janet Dill, Christ Church
Christiana Hundred,
Greenville

Cathedral Choir School (CCS) students thrive on singing classical Anglican music, studying piano and voice, and exploring life's possibilities with the guidance of their mentors. News of the Cathedral's closing cast a shadow on their vivacious spirits for a brief moment, but community offers to provide a new venue have revived their hopes and optimism.

Organizations including churches of several denominations, schools, and foundations reached out to house this award-winning after-school music and mentoring program. Faced with the happy task of selecting a

New Companion Relationship Forming

by the Rev. Anna Waid, retired

The Companion Diocese Committee began its task of searching for a new relationship in September, under the leadership of John Crossan of Christ Church Christiana Hundred, Greenville, and the Rev. Anna Waid, retired. Our first topic of conversation was what is a companion diocese and why have one?

We talked about our diocese being a family of churches and our diocese being part of a greater family of dioceses and our dioceses being part of the

Our last companion relationship with the Scottish Diocese of Argyle & The Isles remains strong even after its completion, as we enjoyed a visit from Bishop Douglas Cameron, retired, and his wife Pat at Parish Life Day in November.

Carry On and Continue

by the Rt. Rev. Wayne Wright, Bishop of Delaware.

Over the weekend of January 20-21, Delaware Episcopalians gathered for the happy occasion of ordaining two new priests. On Friday afternoon Gary Taylor was ordained to serve as the priest chaplain at St. Anne's Episcopal School, Middletown. The next day Ken Athey was ordained to be the parish priest serving All Saints' Church, Delmar.

How wonderful that such important events in our common life should come at the beginning of a new calendar year and so close to our annual celebration of Jesus' baptism. It reminds us once again of how the Holy Spirit offers us so many opportunities to serve through our common ministry.

The Prayer Book's ordination service is beautiful, symbolic, and powerful. It unfolds much like the Sunday Eucharist. As bishop of the diocese, I preside while the opening hymns are sung and prayers read. At the sermon's end, the candidate for ordination comes forward and kneels. All priests in the congregation gather in a circle around the candidate. The Holy Spirit's power and presence is sought as all the faithful sing an ancient hymn, "Come Holy Spirit our souls inspire . . ." There follows a profound silence. It is broken only as the prayer for ordinations is offered. Together the bishop and priests lay their hands upon the new priest. This is the traditional sacramental sign of ordination. The priest then rises to face the congregation. It is a simple act in the midst of a grand moment of worship. But, like so many simple things it reminds us of Jesus.

We don't know much from the Gospels about Jesus' childhood or early years. The story of his ministry begins with his response to John the Baptist's call, "Repent and be baptized." Down Jesus goes into the Jordan River. In the water he kneels. And as he stands up, God's renewing Spirit descends upon him. Jesus' ministry rises dripping wet from the water of baptism. All four Gospel writers tell us that this was true about Jesus. It is also true about every baptized person. As we become Jesus' disciples, the Spirit can and will work through our lives to touch the world. This is a very hopeful moment.

Once Jesus rises from the Jordan, he is led into the wilderness. Somehow such agonizing days of trial and temptation are profoundly transforming. All who see Jesus upon his return are amazed. Even those who may have known him for years are moved to ask,

"Who is this?" We thought we knew him. Somehow he has changed.

Jesus enters the synagogue. They ask him to read from the sacred scriptures. He opens the scroll to Isaiah's prophecy, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me because he has anointed me to preach good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty those who are oppressed, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord." If we follow Jesus, our ministry will have this shape.

Quoting Isaiah's ancient words, Jesus said that every ministry should be "good news to the poor." This will run against the grain of modern life. How often do we hear it said or suggested that "the poor are a problem." Many even say that the poor have only themselves to blame for their plight: if only they were smarter or worked harder or were better organized. This is preaching good news to the poor? Hardly!

Again quoting Isaiah, Jesus said that our ministries should offer "release to the captives." What kind of message is this in communities where the jails are already filled to overflowing? "Lock 'em up and throw away the key," we tell our politicians, police, and judges. As a result, our prisons become intolerably crowded and vastly expensive to maintain. Prison services are cut as budgets are spread thin. Prisoners are even shipped out of state, far away from families, friends, and every system of support. Is this anything like the ministry Jesus envisioned?

What about those who are oppressed because they have become the fair game of a community's bias, bigotry, or even hatred? Jesus said that our ministries should offer "liberty to the oppressed."

Once Jesus finishes reading the scriptures, Luke the Evangelist, with an ever-keen eye, records one final detail. Jesus, Luke tells us, rolls up the sacred scroll. He hands it back to the leader of the synagogue. Then he sits down. Perhaps this is Jesus' way of saying, "I have done my part. I have pointed the way forward to you. This is the shape and direction your ministry should take. Now it is in your hands. Now my work is yours to carry on and continue."

When our new priests were ordained this month at St. Anne's School and All Saints' Church, Delmar, they rose and stood in front of the gathered congregations. A copy of the Holy Scriptures was placed into their hands. Imaginative eyes may see what happened in that synagogue so long ago. It is what continues to happen down through the ages. Every ordination reminds us of the life-changing opportunities for ministry that rise up as we are baptized. What we see happening is yet another encouragement to take that "closer walk" and offer our lives to Jesus as his disciples.

Cathedral Update by Maureen Lyons, Cathedral Transition Group & Trinity Parish, Wilmington

A Cathedral Transition Group headed by Rufus Miller of the bishop's staff has been formed to determine the steps and timeline to aid the Cathedral Church of St. John in a pastoral and orderly closing. This Transition Group consists of members of the Cathedral vestry, the Cathedral Choir School, the bishop's staff, Cathedral Community Services, and other persons who have been involved with the Cathedral's discernment process over the years.

First among the Group's concerns are the pastoral needs of the current congregation and those associated with the Cathedral who may be unable to attend on a regular basis, such as shut-ins and others who consider the Cathedral their church home. Members of the Group are inventorying items in the church such as plaques, memorials, hymnals and prayer books, stained glass, and items used in liturgy by both the Cathedral and the Choir School.

Independent of this Transition Group, both the parish of St. John and the Choir School are seeking alternative worship space in the downtown Wilmington area to see if such sites might be compatible for a mutual move. Many decisions are expected to be made by March 31. The Cathedral Church of St. John will celebrate its last Eucharist on July 29. Continuing updates will follow.

77TH GENERAL CONVENTION

Preparations Continue for Delaware Deputation

The Delaware Deputation met on January 17 at Saint Andrew's School to continue the preparations for the 77th General Convention of the Episcopal Church (July 5-12, 2012 - Indianapolis, Indiana). "We are beginning to receive information on the work of the various commissions and agencies. This will help us to be better informed about the many pieces of legislation that will be considered," said the Rev. Brad Hinton, co-chair of the deputation.

One highly anticipated topic is the proposal of the Standing Commission on Liturgy and Music to provide rites for trial use for the blessing of same gender relationships. Their study materials can be found on our website. Other timely topics will include the proposed Anglican Covenant and consideration of the structure and organization of the Episcopal Church. There's much work ahead that holds a great opportunity for the church.

Rite Living is an ongoing, occasional series on stewardship. This month we consider our stewardship of the moral development of the children in our lives with Peter Thayer of St. Anne's School.

Lessons of Living

by Peter Thayer, Head of School, St. Anne's School, Middletown

A mother was preparing pancakes for her sons, Kevin 5, and Ryan 3. The boys began to argue over who would get the first pancake. Their mother saw the opportunity for a moral lesson. "If Jesus were sitting here, He would say, 'Let my brother have the first pancake, I can wait.'" Kevin turned to his younger brother and said, "Ryan, you be Jesus!"

My guess is that all of us have struggled with how we teach moral lessons to our children, especially at those ages when our children feel that they have a particularly special place in their universe (each of us can determine for ourselves what ages those might be).

I can recall trying to teach my young son the importance of being truthful about something that we believed he had taken that did not belong to him. He responded with, "It's sort of like how Uncle Fritz told me that you told your parents when you were little that you found the $10 bill 'in the woods.'" The hazard of having a big family (my brother Fritz is the oldest of 11 siblings) is that very few "secrets" stay that way. My five year old son reminded me of this all too powerfully.

Of course, as the adults in our children's lives we need to be the best role models we can be. You may be familiar with a brief story called "The Golden Rule," adapted on the Internet from tales by Tolstoy and the Brothers Grimm, in which a family gets frustrated with the elderly grandfather's frequent spilling of food and utensils at the dining room table. They end up setting a separate table for him in the corner with his own wooden bowl so that he would not disrupt their dinner with their four year-old or teach him bad habits.

The story continues, "One evening before supper, the father noticed his son playing with wood scraps on the floor. He asked the child sweetly, 'What are you making?' Just as sweetly, the boy responded, 'Oh, I am making a little bowl for you and Mama to eat your food in when I grow up.'

"The words so struck the parents that they were speechless. Then tears started to stream down their cheeks. Though no word was spoken, both knew what must be done. That evening the husband took Grandfather's hand and gently led him back to the family table. For the remainder of his days he ate every meal with the family. And for some reason, neither husband nor wife seemed to care any longer when a fork was dropped, milk spilled, or the tablecloth soiled."

Children notice the details all the time. Wise parents and teachers recognize that they are building character and teaching moral lessons every step of the way. So I urge all of us to think carefully about our actions and messages. What are we teaching when we take a meal to a friend who is sick? What messages do we send by how we cheer or yell from the sidelines? What do our children infer from the questions we ask about their report cards? What are we saying when we try get our children a discount ticket by "fudging" about their age? How about when we volunteer at our child's school or place of worship, or support a clothing drive, or contribute to a worthy cause? Our children take note and we need to remember that as parents and as teachers [and as adults] we teach lessons every day, even when we might not intend it.

A HOLY LENT

Integrity-DE Lenten Retreat

Integrity DE is offering a special Lenten Retreat on Friday, March 23 and Saturday, March 24, at All Saints' Church in Rehoboth Beach. The presenter is the Rev. Dr. Patrick Cheng, a Professor of Theology at Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, MA and a published author, writing for Seabury Books and contributing to the religion page of the Huffington Post.

The retreat begins on Friday afternoon and concludes later in the day on the 24th (specific times to be announced). Accommodations with special pricing have been arranged at local hotels. The conference registration fee of $75 includes dinner on Friday evening and breakfast and lunch on Saturday.

Space is limited, so it is strongly suggested that interested parties register as soon as possible. For more details on the conference and accommodations, contact Jon Rania at Integrity-DE@hotmail.com or 734-5731. And for more information about our presenter, Patrick Cheng, visit www.PatrickCheng.net.

New Companion Relationship

wider Anglican Church. We are family! We talked about how we can be stretched and taken out of our comfort zone by being in partnership with another diocese in another part of the world. We talked about what a relationship is: the difficulties and rewards of being in one and how we can grow in God's love only by daring to reach out.

We began to see that we were beginning a pilgrimage with this possibility of a new relationship. We decided to call it "A Pilgrimage of Faith, Hope, and Love." We are doing the leg work to begin this journey, but we realize that it will take a second phase to give it form and heart. Phase I includes finding and establishing the relationship with our new partner. Phase II will give it form and depth.

Several things had to be done before the actual search could be carried out. A time line was created, a budget was sent to the finance committee, and the Episcopal Church officer for companion relationships was contacted. Then we began the work of preparing a diocesan profile. We took what was already available at the bishop's office and enhanced that with a questionnaire sent to parishes. We asked for responses to the following questions: (1) provide a brief description of who you are as a parish and what makes you unique; (2) what are your current relationships and mission work, both domestic and abroad?; (3) how do you see your parish living into the companion diocese relationship?; (4) are there areas of the world that your parish is interested or not interested in? Council also spent time answering and discussing similar questions.

Out of all this process, two things became very clear. Over and over it was said that a diocese closer to the U.S. was desirable, mainly because of the ease and cost of travel, and youth involvement is a strong priority.

This profile was sent to our contact at the Episcopal Church office in New York, and we began receiving suggestions of possible partners from her. Committee members contacted all the possibilities, and the committee spent time discussing each one, narrowing down our choices until we had a short list which we sent to Bishop Wright.

Once a choice is made and Council approves, a covenant will be drawn up between the two dioceses. At this point Phase I is at an end. The committee has done an intensive amount of work in a relatively short period of time, and we believe that these efforts will be well worth it.

Once the new companion relationship is formed, it will be time to begin Phase II. This is the fun part, involving planning and carrying out the relationship. This will be a journey of faith for our diocese which will take nurturing, commitment, flexibility, and intentionality. We will try walking in our companion's shoes, and they will try walking in ours. We will be enriched by their stories of faith, and they will be enriched by ours. And out of this relationship we will all be nurtured in God's love and grace, living in the Kingdom. It will take all of us to make this happen. The possibilities are exciting. Our committee cannot do this alone. If you are interested in taking part in Phase II, please call the bishop's office, and we'll be in touch!

We will be enriched by their stories of faith, and they will be enriched by ours.

EQUIPPING THE SAINTS

Mediation Training Opportunity

The "Mediation Skills Training Institute for Church Leaders," presented by the Lombard Mennonite Peace Center, Lombard, IL, will be hosted at Grace Church, Wilmington, March 19-23.

This five-day institute is designed to equip church leaders with the skills necessary to deal effectively with interpersonal, congregational, and other forms of group conflict. It also includes a component on congregational mediation and consultation, placed within the context of family systems theory. Clergy, lay leaders, and parish administrators/managers will gain skills in handling conflicts.

Although focused primarily on the church setting, the skills learned are directly transferable to other settings. Thus, managers in business, attorneys, experienced mediators and others in leadership will be enriched by the training as well, gaining skills in a transformational model of mediation.

The trainer is Richard Blackburn, Executive Director of the Lombard Mennonite Peace Center. For more information and to register go to www.LMPeaceCenter.org. For those needing overnight accommodations, Grace Church is located within a short walk of a number of hotels and restaurants on Concord Pike (Route 202) north of Wilmington.

KENT

Parishioners of all ages from Christ Church, Dover, went caroling to the homes of parishioners who can't attend church.

As part of their ministry to the community, Christ Church, Milford, hosts G.E.D. courses twice weekly.

The people of St. Paul's, Camden, are continuing to prepare meals for the Dover Interfaith Mission for Housing as the chill of winter sets in.

The ongoing adult Christian education at St. Peter's, Smyrna, includes a centering prayer group every Wednesday morning.

NEW CASTLE

The people of Calvary Hillcrest, Wilmington, voted this fall to renew as a parish. Their process hit a milestone at their annual meeting in January, and the Communion will have the full story in the March edition.

Through their Neighborhood Assistance Program, the Cathedral Church of St. John, Wilmington, gave bags of food for holiday festivities to their neighbors at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The Adult Christian Enrichment, Children and Youth Ministry, and the Outreach Committee of Christ Church Christiana Hundred, Greenville, jointly issued a challenge, asking 500 parishioners to commit to some act of community service on the 2012 National Day of Service, the Martin Luther King Jr. Holiday on Monday, January 16.

Anticipating how fellowship is welcome on cold winter nights, the people of Church of the Nativity, New Castle, scheduled a series of game nights each month.

The children of Good Shepherd, Bear/Glasgow, participated in the parish's stewardship campaign by making their own donations to help others through World Vision.

As part of their fundraising efforts for their new chapel roof, Grace Church, Wilmington, is selling shingles for $50 each.

Feeding the hungry is a big part of the ministry at Immanuel Church, Highlands, Wilmington, where they make meals for Emmanuel Dining Room and St. Andrew's Place every month, provide dinners for Epiphany House, and donate to St. Stephen's food pantry, among other efforts.

The youth from Immanuel on the Green, New Castle, led a winter clothing drive in their parish.

Parishioners of St. Barnabas, Wilmington, donated over 1,000 unused cards for their "stockings for soldiers" project.

The people of St. David's, Wilmington, applied for and received a Kohl's Associate in Action Grant, giving them funds and help to purchase and wrap 300 gifts for 30 foster children and a family of four that they adopted for the holiday.

St. James', Newport, recently repainted their sanctuary and addressed some exterior maintenance needs with the help of a challenge grant from the diocese.

Every month the newsletter of St. James Millcreek, Wilmington, includes a page just for their younger parishioners, with games and seasonal craft ideas.

The parish of St. Nicholas', Newark, saw an increase in their pledging for 2012, even while members also made generous pledges to their building fund campaign.

SUSSEX

The people of St. John's, Milton, had a soup and salad supper together before their evening worship on Epiphany.

Pleasant emails of mutual recognition and encouragement have been flying between St. Luke's, Seaford (in Delaware) and St. Luke's, Seaford (in England). An ocean apart, the two congregations also share one bread, one cup.

To meet the needs of their increasingly vibrant congregation, St. Martha's, Bethany Beach, is considering an addition to their building.

As the revived Sunday School program at St. Mary's, Bridgeville, matures, the congregation is pleased to see the older children taking on service and leadership roles in the parish, which was their hope when they brought back the program.

In recognition of their new companion parish in Mexico, the people St. Peter's, Lewes, enjoyed a Fiesta of the Three Kings for Epiphany.

Youth from St. Paul's, Georgetown, led the parish in a "fill a bag, feed a family" food drive during Advent.

TRANSITIONS

Trowbridge to New York

The Rev. Dustin Trowbridge of Trinity Parish, Wilmington, has accepted the call to be Priest-in-Charge of a pair of churches in the Diocese of New York: St. George's, Newburgh, and St. Thomas', New Windsor, which are embarking on a new joint ministry together. He credits his experience at Trinity as the training needed to lead this 40% Latino, multi-congregational, urban parish.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH WOMEN

A "New" Diocesan ECW President

Reprising her role from 1979, Nancy Hitch has graciously agreed to serve as President of the Diocesan Episcopal Church Women (ECW). A 35-year member of St. Philip's, Laurel, Nancy is married to Bill Hitch and has two children and two grandchildren, whom she is blessed to live near. "I thought I was done with everything," Nancy laughed, "I've been my parish's ECW president, secretary – whatever was needed. Now I'm happy to serve as diocesan ECW president again!" Nancy replaces Rose Sombar, who graciously served as president for the past seven years.

A SIGN OF THANKFULNESS

UTO Correction & Announcement

In last month's article about Sue Ann Backus's appointment as Diocesan United Thank Offering (UTO) Coordinator, Rose Sombar was incorrectly identified as her predecessor. Beth FitzPatrick, of the Church of the Ascension in Claymont, actually filled that post for five years. In September, Beth was elected for a three-year term as UTO Coordinator and UTO Board Representtative for Province III. She will be installed at the Triennial Meeting in Indianapolis in July.

"The more we can do to advance the UTO the better," said FitzPatrick. "The UTO is a prayer ministry.... The money we collect is a visible sign of our prayers of thankfulness." For more information about UTO, contact Sue Ann Backus at 280-6235 or SABackus@gmail.com.

suitable site from many, the CCS Board has now narrowed the field to a few churches in the City of Wilmington and plans to announce the final selection by early spring.

"Choristers, many from underserved neighborhoods, gain confidence and skills at CCS," said Linda O'Connor, president of the board. "Their successes defy statistics: they stay in school, graduating on time and continuing on to college, the military, or post-secondary training. They learn academic and social skills, especially how to interact with others responsibly and live by Christian values. Many alumni credit their academic and career achievements to the choir."

Eugene Lavery, choirmaster, invites all to hear them Sunday mornings at the 10:30 services at St. John's or at Vespers. Visit www.CathedralChoirSchoolDE.com or "friend" them on Facebook for specific program dates and times.
